Ephemeral Fluid of Reality

Melanie Figueiredo

McMaster University

For fluid paintings, acrylic colours are mixed and poured onto a canvas, and then blown air is used to spread the paint out. It is difficult to predict and plan what the painting is going to look like, even with great precision when blowing the air. To me, that is what rhythm in everyday life is- unpredictable, adaptable and hectic.

Keywords

fluidity,
liquid art,
acrylic pouring,
abstract painting